TABLET I

OBV i  When the gods instead of man
       Did the work, bore the loads,
       The gods' load was too great,
       The work too hard, the trouble too much,
       The great Anunnaki made the Igigi
       Carry the workload sevenfold.
       Anu their father was king,
       Their counsellor warrior Ellil,
       Their chamberlain was Ninurta,
       Their canal-controller Ennugi.
       They took the box (of lots) . . . ,
       Cast the lots; the gods made the division.
       Anu went up to the sky,
       [And Ellil (?)] took the earth for his people (?).
       The bolt which bars the sea
       Was assigned to far-sighted Enki.
       When Anu had gone up to the sky,
       [And the gods of] the Apsu had gone below,
       The Anunnaki of the sky
       Made the Igigi bear the workload.
       The gods had to dig out canals,
       Had to clear channels, the lifelines of the land,
       The Igigi had to dig out canals,
       Had to clear channels, the lifelines of the land.
       The gods dug out the Tigris river (bed)
       And then dug out the Euphrates.
       [ ] in the deep
       [ ] they set up

Myths from Mesopotamia

[ the great marsh,
They were counting the years of loads.
For 3,600 years they bore the excess,
Hard work, night and day.
They groaned and blamed each other,
Grumbled over the masses of excavated soil: 'Let us confront our [ ] the chamberlain,
And get him to relieve us of our hard work!
Come, let us carry [the Lord (?)],
The counsellor of gods, the warrior, from his dwelling.
Come, let us carry [Ellil],
The counsellor of gods, the warrior, from his dwelling.'
Then Alla made his voice heard?
And spoke to the gods his brothers, (gap of about 8 lines)

'Come! Let us carry
The counsellor of gods, the warrior, from his dwelling.
Come! Let us carry Ellil,
The counsellor of gods, the warrior, from his dwelling.
Now, cry battle!
Let us mix fight with battle!'
The gods listened to his speech,
Set fire to their tools,
Put aside their spades for fire,
Their loads for the fire-god,
They flared up. When they reached
The gate of warrior Ellil's dwelling,
It was night, the middle watch,
The house was surrounded, the god had not realized.
It was night, the middle watch,
Ekur was surrounded, Ellil had not realized.
Yet Kalkal was attentive, and had it closed,
He held the lock and watched [the gate].
Kalkal roused [Nusku].
They listened to the noise of [the Igigi].
Then Nusku roused his master,
Made him get out of bed:

‘My lord, your house is surrounded,
A rabble is running around your door!
Ellil, your house is surrounded,
A rabble is running around your door!’

Ellil had weapons brought to his dwelling.
Ellil made his voice heard
And spoke to the vizier Nusku,
‘Nusku, bar your door,
Take up your weapons and stand in front of me.’

Nusku barred his door,
Took up his weapons and stood in front of Ellil.
Nusku made his voice heard
And spoke to the warrior Ellil,
‘O my lord, your face is (sallow as) tamarisk!8
Why do you fear your own sons?
O Ellil, your face is (sallow as) tamarisk!
Why do you fear your own sons?
Send for Anu to be brought down to you,
Have Enki fetched into your presence.’

He sent for Anu to be brought down to him,
Enki was fetched into his presence,
Anu king of the sky was present,
Enki king of the Apsu attended.
The great Anunnaki were present.
Ellil got up and the case was put.
Ellil made his voice heard
And spoke to the great gods,
‘Is it against me that they have risen?
Shall I do battle . . . ?
What did I see with my own eyes?
A rabble was running around my door!’

Anu made his voice heard
And spoke to the warrior Ellil,
iii ‘Let Nusku go out
And [find out] word of the Igigi
Who have surrounded your door.
A command . . .
To . . . ’

Ellil made his voice heard
And spoke to the vizier Nusku,
‘Nusku, open your door,
Take up your weapons [and stand before me!]
In the assembly of all the gods,
Bow, then stand [and tell them],
“Your father Anu,
Your counsellor warrior Ellil,
Your chamberlain Ninurta
And your canal-controller Ennugi
Have sent me to say,
Who is in charge of the rabble?
Who is in charge of the fighting?
Who declared war?
Who ran to the door of Ellil?”

[Nusku opened] his door,
[Took up his weapons,] went [before (?)] Ellil
In the assembly of all the gods
[He bowed], then stood and told the message.
‘Your father Anu,
Your counsellor warrior Ellil,
Your chamberlain Ninurta

Ellil listened to that speech.
His tears flowed.
Ellil spoke guardedly (?),
Addressed the warrior Anu,

'Noble one, take a decree
With you to the sky, show your strength—
While the Anunnaki are sitting before you
Call up one god and let them cast him for destruction!'

Anu made his voice heard
And spoke to the gods his brothers,

'What are we complaining of?
Their work was indeed too hard, their trouble was too much.
Every day the earth (?) [resounded (?)].
The warning signal was loud enough, we kept hearing the noise.

'(While) the Anunnaki are sitting before you,
And (while) Belet-ili the womb-goddess is present,
Call up one and cast him for destruction!'

Anu made his voice heard and spoke to [Nusku],

(SBV) Ea made his voice heard
And spoke to the gods his brothers,
'Why are we blaming them?
Their work was too hard, their trouble was too much.
Every day the earth (?) [resounded (?)].
The warning signal was loud enough, [we kept hearing the noise.]
There is [ ]
Belet-ili the womb-goddess is present—
Let her create primeval man
So that he may bear the yoke [()],
So that he may bear the yoke, [the work of Ellil],
Let man bear the load of the gods!'

(OBV) 'Belet-ili the womb-goddess is present,
Let the womb-goddess create offspring,
And let man bear the load of the gods!' They called up the goddess, asked The midwife of the gods, wise Mami, 'You are the womb-goddess (to be the) creator of mankind! Create primeval man, that he may bear the yoke! Let him bear the yoke, the work of Ellil, Let man bear the load of the gods!' Nintu made her voice heard And spoke to the great gods, 'It is not proper for me to make him. The work is Enki's; He makes everything pure! If he gives me clay, then I will do it.' Enki made his voice heard And spoke to the great gods, 'On the first, seventh, and fifteenth of the month I shall make a purification by washing. Then one god should be slaughtered. And the gods can be purified by immersion. Nintu shall mix clay With his flesh and his blood. Then a god and a man Will be mixed together in clay. Let us hear the drumbeat forever after, Let a ghost come into existence from the god's flesh, Let her proclaim it as his living sign, And let the ghost exist so as not to forget (the slain god). They answered 'Yes!' in the assembly, The great Anunnaki who assign the fates.

On the first, seventh, and fifteenth of the month He made a purification by washing. Ilawela who had intelligence, They slaughtered in their assembly. Nintu mixed clay With his flesh and blood. They heard the drumbeat forever after.
A ghost came into existence from the god’s flesh,
And she (Nintu) proclaimed it as his living sign.

The ghost existed so as not to forget (the slain god).
After she had mixed that clay,
She called up the Anunnaki, the great gods.
The Igigi, the great gods,
Spat spittle upon the clay.
Mami made her voice heard
And spoke to the great gods,
‘I have carried out perfectly
The work that you ordered of me.
You have slaughtered a god together with his intelligence.
I have relieved you of your hard work,
I have imposed your load on man.
You have bestowed noise on mankind.
I have undone the fetter and granted freedom.’

They listened to this speech of hers,¹³
And were freed (from anxiety), and kissed her feet:
‘We used to call you Mami
But now your name shall be Mistress of All Gods.’

Far-sighted Enki and wise Mami
Went into the room of fate.
The womb-goddesses were assembled.
He trod the clay in her presence;¹⁴
She kept reciting an incantation,
For Enki, staying in her presence, made her recite it.

When she had finished her incantation,
She pinched off fourteen pieces (of clay),
(And set) seven pieces on the right,
Seven on the left.
Between them she put down a mud brick.¹⁵
She made use of (?) a reed, opened it (?) to cut the

The mother of the baby shall sever herself.

Now there was one Atrahasis
Whose ear was open (to) his god Enki.
He would speak with his god
And his god would speak with him.
Atrahasis I

Atrahasis made his voice heard
And spoke to his lord,
‘How long (?) [will the gods make us suffer]?
Will they make us suffer illness forever?’
Enki made his voice heard
And spoke to his servant:
‘Call the elders, the senior men!23
Start [an uprising] in your own house,
Let heralds proclaim . . .
Let them make a loud noise in the land:
Do not revere your gods,24
Do not pray to your goddesses,
But search out the door of Namtara.
Bring a baked loaf into his presence.
May the flour offering reach him,
May he be shamed by the presents
And wipe away his “hand”.25
Atrahasis took the order,
Gathered the elders to his door.
Atrahasis made his voice heard
And spoke to the elders,
‘I have called the elders, the senior men!
Start [an uprising] in your own house,
Let heralds proclaim . . .
Let them make a loud noise in the land:
Do not revere your gods!
Do not pray to your goddesses!
Search out the door of Namtara.
Bring a baked loaf into his presence.
May the flour offering reach him;
May he be shamed by the presents
And wipe away his “hand”.’
The elders listened to his speech;
They built a temple for Namtara in the city.
Heralds proclaimed . . .
They made a loud noise in the land.
They did not revere their god,
Did not pray to their goddess,
But searched out the door of Namtara,
Brought a baked loaf into his presence.
The flour offering reached him.
And he was shamed by the presents.
And wiped away his 'hand'.
The šuruppu-disease left them,
[The gods] went back to their [(regular) offerings]

SBV iii Not three epochs had passed.
The country became too wide, the people too numerous.
The country was as noisy as a bellowing bull.
The gods grew restless at their noise.
Enlil organized his assembly again,
Addressed the gods his sons:

Command that Anu and Adad keep the (air) above (earth) locked,
Sin and Nergal keep the middle earth locked.
As for the bolt that bars the sea,

He ordered, and Anu and Adad kept the (air) above
(earth) locked,
Sin and Nergal kept the middle earth locked.
As for the bolt that bars the sea,
Ea with his lahmu-creatures kept it locked.
Then the very wise man Atra-hasis
Wept daily.
He would carry a maššakku-offering along the riverside pasture,
Although the irrigation-water was silent.
Half-way through the night he offered a sacrifice.
As sleep began to overtake him (?)
He addressed the irrigation-water:
'May the irrigation-water take it, may the river
carry it,
May the gift be placed in front of Ea my lord.
May Ea see it and think of me!
So may I see a dream in the night.'
When he had sent the message by water,
He sat facing the river, he wept (?)
The man wept (?) facing the river
As his plea went down to the Apsu.
Then Ea heard his voice.
[He summoned his lahmu-creatures] and addressed them.

And spoke to his master,
'Indicate to me the meaning of the dream,
[ ] let me find out its portent (?)'
Enki made his voice heard
And spoke to his servant,
'You say, "I should find out in bed (?)".36
Make sure you attend to the message I shall tell you!
Wall, listen constantly to me!
Reed hut, make sure you attend to all my words!
Dismantle the house, build a boat,
Reject possessions, and save living things.
The boat that you build
Roof it like the Apsu
So that the Sun cannot see inside it!
Make upper decks and lower decks.
The tackle must be very strong,
The bitumen strong, to give strength.
I shall make rain fall on you here,
A wealth of birds, a hamper (?) of fish.'
He opened the sand clock and filled it,
He told him the sand (needed) for the Flood was Seven nights' worth.
Atrahasis received the message.
He gathered the elders at his door.
Atrahasis made his voice heard
And spoke to the elders,
'My god is out of favour with your god.
Enki and [Ellil (?)] have become angry with each other.
They have driven me out of [my house].
Since I always stand in awe of Enki,
He told (me) of this matter.
I can no longer stay in [ ]
I cannot set my foot on Ellil's territory (again).
[I must go down to the Apsu and stay] with (my) god (?).
This is what he told me.'

He invited his people [ ]
[ ] to a feast.
[ ] he put his family on board.
They were eating, they were drinking.
But he went in and out,
Could not stay still or rest on his haunches,
His heart was breaking and he was vomiting bile.
The face of the weather changed.
Adad bellowed from the clouds.
When (?) he (Atrahasis) heard his noise,
Bitumen was brought and he sealed his door.
While he was closing up his door
Adad kept bellowing from the clouds.
The winds were raging even as he went up
(And) cut through the rope, he released the boat.

Myths from Mesopotamia

[Anu (?)] went berserk,
[The gods (?)] . . . his sons . . . before him
As for Nintu the Great Mistress,
Her lips became encrusted with rime. 37
The great gods, the Anunna,
Stayed parched and famished.
The goddess watched and wept,
Midwife of the gods, wise Mami:
‘Let daylight (?) . . .
Let it return and . . .!
However could I, in the assembly of gods,
Have ordered such destruction with them?
Ellil was strong enough (?) to give a wicked order. 38
Like Tiruru he ought to have cancelled that wicked order 39
I heard their cry levelled at me,
Against myself, against my person.
Beyond my control (?) my offspring have become like white sheep. 40
As for me, how am I to live (?) in a house of bereavement?
My noise has turned to silence.
Could I go away, up to the sky
And live as in a cloister (?)?
What was Anu’s intention as decision-maker?
It was his command that the gods his sons obeyed,
He who did not deliberate, but sent the Flood,
He who gathered the people to catastrophe
[iv (3 lines missing at beginning of column)]
Nintu was wailing [ ]
‘Would a true father (?) have given birth to the [rolling (?)] sea
(So that) they could clog the river like dragonflies?41
They are washed up (?) like a raft on [a bank (?)],
They are washed up like a raft on a bank in open country!
I have seen, and wept over them!
Shall I (ever) finish weeping for them?'
She wept, she gave vent to her feelings,
Nintu wept and fuelled her passions.
The gods wept with her for the country.
She was sated with grief, she longed for beer (in vain).
Where she sat weeping, (there the great gods) sat too,
But, like sheep, could only fill their windpipes (with bleating).
Thirsty as they were, their lips Discharged only the rime of famine.
For seven days and seven nights
The torrent, storm and flood came on.

(gap of about 58 lines)

He put down [ ],
Provided food [ ]
The gods smelt the fragrance,
Gathered like flies over the offering.
When they had eaten the offering,
Nintu got up and blamed them all,
'Whatever came over Anu who makes the decisions?
Did Ellil (dare to) come for the smoke offering?
(Those two) who did not deliberate, but sent the Flood,
Gathered the people to catastrophe—
You agreed the destruction.
(Now) their bright faces are dark (forever).'
Then she went up to the big flies42
Which Anu had made, and (declared) before the gods,
'His grief is mine! My destiny goes with his!
He must deliver me from evil, and appease me!
Let me go out in the morning (?) [

vi

Let these flies be the lapis lazuli of my necklace
By which I may remember it (?) daily (?)
[forever (?)].'

The warrior Ellil spotted the boat. And was furious with the Igigi.
'Ve, the great Anunna, all of us,
Agreed together on an oath!
No form of life should have escaped!
How did any man survive the catastrophe?'

Anu made his voice heard
And spoke to the warrior Ellil,
'Who but Enki would do this?
He made sure that the [reed hut] disclosed the order.'

Enki made his voice heard
And spoke to the great gods,
'I did it, in defiance of you!
I made sure life was preserved [ ]

vii In addition let there be one-third of the people,
Among the people the woman who gives birth yet does
Not give birth (successfully);
Let there be the paštītu-demon among the people,
To snatch the baby from its mother’s lap.
Establish ugbabtu, entu, egišītu-women:
They shall be taboo, and thus control childbirth.’

How we sent the Flood.
But a man survived the catastrophe.
You are the counsellor of the gods;
On your orders I created conflict.

And let them record (?) your greatness.
I shall sing of the Flood to all people:

NOTES TO ATRAHASIS

When a speech in the translations breaks off because of a gap in the tablet, inverted commas are not closed so as not to imply the precise point at which the speech ends. Indentation shows, when the text resumes after a gap, whether the speech is thought to continue. The original texts have no punctuation, and since it is not always clear when a speech begins or ends even in a perfectly preserved text, the translator occasionally has to make an arbitrary decision. Words and phrases which require detailed philological argument have not been discussed: oversimplification from a scholarly point of view is inevitably the result. These remarks apply to all translations in this book. A summary of references to research on details of the text of Atrahasis is given by Moran 1987, to which add Wiggermann 1986 and Wilcke 1999.

OBV Enki is replaced by Ea, the later form of the name, in SBV.

1. The format of the opening line ‘When . . .’ may be compared with the Epic of Creation and with the Theogony of Dunnu. The meaning of this line is disputed. The translation in the original edition as ‘When the gods like men’ was justified by a supposed grammatical comparison with a line in II. ii, which is invalid; but it finds support in a recension of the text 1,000 years later (Lambert 1969a).

2. Play on words ‘load’ and ‘trouble’, šupšik/šapšaqum.

3. Or, ‘The seven great Anunnaki made the lgigi . . .’

4. Land was divided for inheritance among sons in ancient Mesopotamia by casting lots. Burkert 1983, 53 has pointed out similarities with Iliad, XV. 187–193, Poseidon’s speech to Iris telling how the earth was originally divided by lot into three domains.

5. The crucial part played by Enki’s bolt and his lahmu-heroes is discussed in note 26.

6. For kalakku meaning ‘excavated soil’ see AHw Nachträge, s.v.

7. This common formulaic phrase says literally ‘made/did his mouth’, commonly translated ‘opened his mouth’. However, it is clear from related phrases in the Epic of Creation and Anzu (see note 23 to Anzu) that the verb implies ‘to utter’, never ‘to open’, and ‘mouth’ has an extended meaning ‘speech’, attested in various contexts. The Akkadian phrase is alliterative, pāšu ēpuš.

8. The same metaphor occurs in the Descent of Ishtar.

9. Ennugi: a variant text has Annugal.

10. Perhaps means ‘heartbeat, pulse’.

11. Perhaps a play on the words etemmu ‘ghost’ and ūmu ‘intelligence’.

12. Moran 1970 translates: ‘Let her inform him while alive of his token, And so that there be no forgetting, the ghost shall remain.’ The meaning of the lines is ambiguous.

13. Wording identical to these four lines occurs in Anzu, I. iii.

14. Brick-making procedure is described. The brick god, Kulla, was created by Enki who pinched off clay for the purpose, according to an incantation called 'When Anu created heaven'.

15. The brick may symbolize the prototype of man's creative ability. One of the names of the mother goddess Belet-ili is 'lapis lazuli brick', and it may be relevant that the bun-shaped 'plano-convex' brick used in early dynastic Mesopotamia resembles the bulge of pregnancy and was widely used for building despite its inappropriate shape. See Woolley/Moorey 1982, 45–6. There is no evidence to support the suggestion (Lambert and Millard 1969, 153) that a brick structure used as a birth stool is intended.

16. Verb translated 'made use of (?)' perhaps bedû; see AHw Nachträge, s.v.

17. Possibly 'crowned' or 'veiled'—the midwife covers her own head in the next episode, but the meaning is uncertain. The word occurs only in the singular.

18. The translation of the following lines largely follows Wilcke 1985a, 295 ff.

19. Possibly there is a small gap in the text here.

20. The word used for 'staff' here also means a term or recurrent period of time.

21. Or, 'She shall name Mami as their . . .'

22. Six hundred years is a round number in the sexagesimal system used by the ancient Mesopotamians. As a numerical unit, 600 was the simple noun nēru in Akkadian. Repetition of a number seems to occur as a literary device, e.g. in Gilgamesh, VI. ii. 'you dug seven and seven pits for him', or XI. 'arranged the jars seven and seven'.

23. See AHw Nachträge, s.v. sillûnu.

24. Probably refers to the concept which was prevalent in Mesopotamia of a personal god and goddess for each person.

25. 'Hand (of a god)' is a common Akkadian expression for a disease. For the verb, see AHw Nachträge, s.v. sukkulu.

26. The structure of Tablet II is difficult to see. OBV and SBV may diverge, and the point at which they overlap is uncertain. Particularly mystifying is the repeated description of six years of famine in SBV v. and vi. A fragmentary tablet from Babylon (Lambert and Millard 1969, 116 ff.) implies that Ea's laḫmu-heroes, who were in charge of the bolt that guarded the sea, went out of control and let out fish which broke the bolt and nourished mankind (with F. Wiggermann 1986, 286, reading lāhmi-ka/su instead of šam-mi-ka/su 'his plants').

27. These lines were used in an incantation against drought according to a neo-Assyrian compilation (Lambert and Millard 1969, 28).

28. See AHw, s.v. tušûm. 'Ninefold' perhaps echoes the nine months of pregnancy and the nine days in which the brick was put down, in Tablet I. 'Thief' or, 'a benefactor', šarrāqi or šarrāki.

29. For this passage see Moran 1987, who shows why, in the flood episode, Ea/Enki had to communicate with Atrahasis by means of the reed hut, because he had been sworn to secrecy.

30. These lines refer to salination, the crystallization of salts on the topsoil when drainage of irrigation water is inadequate.
32. Note the literary stratagem which defies literal chronology by featuring Atrahasis as the same mortal in recurrent crises 600 years apart.
33. Or: '[Will you] cut off sickness?'
34. Literally: 'by weighing with (?) the ašqalātu', following AHw Nach-träge, s.v. ašqalātu; and see Glossary, s.v.
36. See von Soden 1979, 32.
37. The translation takes the noun as pulhaitu 'scab' and the verb as arāru 'to rot, discharge putrid liquid'.
38. See Moran 1981.
39. This reference is not understood.
40. See AHw, s.v. šuppu. Presumably means, 'like sacrificial sheep'.
41. The drowning of masses of dragonflies is alluded to also in Ut-napishtim's speech in Gilgamesh, X. vi.
42. The symbolism of the flies is not certain. According to Parpola 1983, fly-shaped beads were used in self-flagellation by devotees of Ishtar to induce ecstasy, but he quotes no evidence. Kilmer 1987 takes them as symbolic of death and of bravery in battle. A text fragment included in Campbell Thompson 1930, plate 59, says that all the gods of Uruk turned into flies when they abandoned Uruk, so possibly there is an allusion in this passage to a previous event when the gods abandoned mankind. See also Gilgamesh, note 139.
43. The word used for 'boat' here, makurru, implies a large cargo vessel shaped like the gibbous moon.
44. At this juncture the gods replaced lullā, primeval man who had no natural life-span, with mortal man. Therefore the Flood marks the transition from primeval men who lived for centuries, to men whose lives decline in old age, as now. See Wilcke 1999 and George 1999.
45. These are classes of female devotees attached to temples who were not usually allowed to bear children.
46. This type of line is often found at the start of oral narrative: cf. Gilgamesh, Anzu, and Erra and Ishum.
47. Brief colophons also exist for the first and second tablets of Atrahasis. Elsewhere in this volume the translator has selected colophons arbitrarily, particularly if they are well preserved and interesting, in order to illustrate the kinds of information which they can provide.
